2. Chapter One: Lesson 1

- I did not say you were lying. I said to tell the truth, rich
- dad retorted.
- The truth about what? I asked.
- How you re feeling, rich dad said. You don t have to say it
- to anyone else. Just admit it to yourself.
- You mean the people in this park, the people who work for you,
- Mrs. Martin, they don t do that? I asked.

- I doubt it, said rich dad. Instead, they feel the fear of not

- to becoming rich. Keep doing that, and your asset column will grow.
- Keep liabilities and expenses down so more money is available to
- continue pouring into the asset column. Soon the asset base will be
- so deep that you can afford to look at more speculative investments:
- investments that may have returns of 100 percent to infinity;
- $5,000 investments that are soon turned into $1 million or more;
- investments that the middle class calls too risky. The investment is
- not risky for the financially literate.

4. Chapter Five: Lesson 5

- I have said it before, but it s worth repeating. Financial intelligence
- is made up of these four main technical skills:
- Accounting
- Accounting is financial literacy, or the ability to read
- numbers. This is a vital skill if you want to build
- businesses or investments.
- Investing
- Investing is the science of money making money.

5. Rich Dad Poor Dad

- Of course not, said rich dad. I firmly believe in paying my bills on
- time. I just pay myself first. Before I pay even the government.
- But what happens if you don t have enough money? I asked.
- What do you do then?
- The same, said rich dad. I still pay myself first. Even if I m
- short of money. My asset column is far more important to me than
- the government.
- But, I said. Don t they come after you?
